Burglary Ring Solved with Numerous Arrests

Sheriff Tony Thompson announces the arrests of numerous people involved in a burglary ring that has taken place throughout rural Black Hawk County. In February, the Sheriff's Office began investigating numerous residential break-ins and attempted break-ins in rural Black Hawk County.

These break-ins also involved municipalities throughout the county. The investigation was largely successful based on interagency cooperation which included investigators with the Sheriff's Office and the Waterloo Police Department, including night shift uniformed patrol officers from both departments, and the assistance of investigators in the Iowa Division of Criminal Investigations, Grundy County, Tama County, Benton County, Marshall County, and Dubuque County.

“The amount of investigative hours, the mutual cooperation between agencies, and the sincere desire to hold accountable each and every person responsible for those residential burglaries makes me very proud to be able to announce this slew of arrests and charges today.” says Sheriff Thompson. “The partnerships we share with other investigating agencies and our officer’s desire to make these people answer for victimizing our citizens is what made this possible. This was hard core police work and dedicated investigating throughout.”

According to Sheriff Thompson, “The victimization was not isolated to rural residences with these folks and unfortunately, we lost landmark businesses thanks to their idiocy. They will have a lot of time to contemplate the error of their ways. I am very proud of every officer and every agency involved in bringing these individuals to justice. In that vein, there are still a few we are looking for (active warrants issued) and still could use the public’s help to render the final arrests in these cases.”
